Part 2

Bonfire Night

[...]

1 The year was 1605 and some English Catholics were angry because King James I was treating them badly. In November of that year, a group of men made a plan to blow up the Houses of Parliament in London. An enormous explosion was planned for 5 November. This was the day that the king was due to open Parliament. The plan became known as the 'Gunpowder Plot' and the leader of the group was called Guy Fawkes.

5 The men put 36 barrels of gunpowder in the Houses of Parliament and waited for the king to arrive. The group decided that Guy Fawkes should light the gunpowder and cause the explosion. Did they succeed? No, they didn't. The police found the gunpowder before it exploded and they caught all the men involved in the plot. The men were tortured and killed. To celebrate his survival, King James ordered the people of England to have a bonfire on the night of 5 November.

10 On 5 November, people remember the plot to blow up the Houses of Parliament by celebrating 'Bonfire Night'. All over Britain there are firework displays and bonfires with models of Guy Fawkes, which are burned on the fire. The Guy is made of old clothes and the clothes are filled with newspaper. The fireworks are a reminder of the gunpowder that Guy Fawkes hid in the cellar of Parliament. Some people have a small bonfire in their garden on 5 November, while in main towns and cities there are big bonfires and firework displays. The biggest firework display is the Edenbridge Display in Kent. Edenbridge also has the biggest Guy: a nine-metre 'celebrity' model is burned there every year. Last year the celebrity Guy was Wayne Rooney wearing Shrek-style ears and a football shirt.

It's normally quite cold in November in Britain, so on Bonfire Night people wear hats, scarves and gloves to spend the evening outside. They need some warm food too. Traditional Bonfire Night food is hot baked potatoes. They are cooked on the bonfire and filled with butter and cheese. There are also toffee apples (apples on a stick, covered in sweet toffee) and in the north of England they eat a special type of cake called parkin. Toasting marshmallows on the bonfire is also popular. Yum!

[...]

In Britain only adults can buy fireworks but in the past they were sold to children too. During the days before Bonfire Night, children used to take their home-made Guys onto the streets and ask for 'a penny for the Guy' to collect money to buy fireworks. Now you have to be over 18 to buy fireworks, and safety on Bonfire Night is an important issue. (458 words)

The Beltane Fire Celebration

1 To the pastoral¹ Celtic peoples of Europe the ① pattern of the seasons was a matter of life and death, and marking these changes were key moments in the life ② the community. Beltane – “bright fire” – was one such marker ③ in various forms ④ Ireland, Scotland and Man as the starting point of summer. A celebration of the time of light and growth to come, Beltane was associated ⑤ a variety of practices, from the display 5 of fresh greenery to the baking of Beltane bannocks². Perhaps the most important element, however, was the lighting of Beltane fires on the first of May, which ⑥ recall the growing power of the sun and provide an opportunity to cleanse and renew the conditions of a community – both humans and their animals – that had spent the dark months indoors.

In 1988 Edinburgh’s Beltane fires were brought to life once more. [...]

LCT Texte Muster II

Part 1

(Audiotrack: QR-Code rechts / Aufgaben S. 2)

a) How is the weather going to be?

- Mother: Simon, you should put on a jumper, it's going to be chilly this morning.
 Simon: But I looked online and they said it would be 26° today, so I won't need one.
 Mother: I said 'this morning'. Later it's going to be sunny, yes.
 Simon: See, so I don't need it.
 Mother: Simon, I am not discussing this. Put on a jumper for now, you can take it off later, once it's warm.

b) Where are they going on excursion?

- Mother: So, tell me, where are you going on your school excursion this year?
 Tina: Well, first we were supposed to go to Brighton. But then everybody was against it. So Ms Kells suggested Eastbourne or Hastings. But most of my classmates said that those two cities were somehow too similar to Brighton.
 Mother: Which is kind of true.
 Tina: Yeah, so in the end we stuck with the first choice – there's more to see and do anyway.

c) What festival are they going to?

- Man: You know, I would really like to go to a festival this summer.
 Woman: Oh, yes, that would be awesome. Which one do you want to go to?
 Man: Well, Glastonbury has long been sold out. But there is We Out Here, featuring soul, hip-hop, house, jazz. Or Houghton, with techno, house and electronic. Or Green Man, an arts and music festival.
 Woman: They all sound good. But I like the combination of art and music, so that would be it for me.
 Man: I was actually thinking the same thing. All right, I'll go and check if there are still tickets available.

d) Which tea pot does he buy?

- Man: Hello, I'd like to buy a tea mug as a present.
 Salesperson: Certainly. Who is it for?
 Man: My grandmother.
 Salesperson: I would recommend one with a lid, it keeps the tea warm. How about this red one?
 Man: Good idea. But I'll take the blue one with the "grandma" logo.

e) Which instrument will Mike play?

- Mike: Hey Maggie, have you already decided on an instrument you can learn to play at school?
 Maggie: Yes, actually, I have. I'm going to learn to play the piano. And you?
 Mike: Wow, piano is cool. That was my first choice too, actually. But then I decided to try out a few more. So I tried out the saxophone, viola, guitar, and even the drums.
 Maggie: And what did you decide on in the end?
 Mike: Well, my mom put her foot down regarding the drums: too loud. The saxophone wasn't to my liking and in the end the guitar won, because I can play it in a band as well, not just in an orchestra like the viola.

Telephone call for pizza delivery

Pizza Service: Hello. Can I take your order?

Hugh: Yes. I would like a large pizza with ... what toppings do you have?

Pizza Service: We have salami, ham, pepperoni, mushrooms, onions, olives, aubergines, red peppers. Tomatoes and cheese are always included as basic toppings.

Hugh: Do you have different kinds of cheese?

Pizza Service: Sure. We have cheddar, gorgonzola or mozzarella.

Hugh: Okay, I'll have salami, pepperoni and mushrooms then. And cheddar cheese, please.

Pizza Service: Of course. Would you like anything else?

Hugh: Just a coke, please.

Pizza Service: Actually, we have a Sunday special going on right now and if you order any large pizza and drink, you'll get free bread sticks.

Hugh: That sounds great.

Pizza Service: Okay. Your total comes to eighteen twenty, you can pay cash or by debit card. And could I have your address and telephone number?

Hugh: I'll pay cash and the address is Hugh Acton, Unit 16, 17 Colmore Row, the phone number is 0121-5639.

Pizza Service: Okay. Let me repeat your order. A large pizza with salami, pepperoni, mushrooms, and cheddar cheese. And a coke.

Hugh: That's correct.

Pizza Service: Thank you for your order, Sir. It should take around 45 minutes.

Hugh: Thank you very much.
